Free energy – the energy of conscious awareness – correctly used

From Tesla to modern quantum physics

When Nikola Tesla stated, at the close of the 19th century: «There is an energy field that permeates the entire universe. There is no end to this energy and it is available to mankind in unlimited amounts», no-one would have imagined that over 100 years would pass before the first «free energy devices» would be ready for the market.

The reasons for this are well known. Tesla was of course an accomplished electrical engineer and was therefore able to put his knowledge to practical use. However, at heart he was also a deeply spiritual person, which meant that he was constantly blessed with flashes of insight; these took the form of inner images of such clarity that he never once needed to produce any technical drawings in order to turn them into reality. In addition to this, he was a diligent experimenter and had long been sufficiently wealthy to finance his own scientific research, for the fees that he received for his patents in his early years had made him a very wealthy man.

His 725 patents indicate not only his unceasing diligence, but also his superhuman creativity. With his groundbreaking discoveries, he was far ahead of his time.

Because the powers behind the scenes (the Illuminati) would permit nothing that diminished their own power and potential wealth in any way, Tesla came under attack. His laboratory was destroyed, and obstacles were put in his way to prevent him from patenting a functioning «free energy device». He eventually died, impoverished and embittered, in a New York hotel room – and within 24 hours of his death the CIA had confiscated all of the documents that they found there.

From this we can see that, even back then, some people were against free energy. And also today, some of those who are in power want to prevent it at all costs.

However, free energy has motivated thousands of private researchers and inventors, and never more so than in the last few decades. All have tried to tap this universal energy field – but few have delved deeply enough into the laws of creation, so that many of these researchers are still going round in circles without making any real progress. For many years we have been hearing that so-called magnetic generators will soon be on the market, but we have always been disappointed in the end. Are these devices truly incapable of functioning – or have the functioning systems been suppressed?

Some very detailed research into the fates of 300 people who have been granted «free energy patents» (carried out by an officially appointed German expert personally known to us) has revealed that:

- 100 of these people could not be found
- 100 had died in fatal car accidents that have never been explained
- 100 suddenly became wealthy (the patents were never exploited)

The figures indicate that anyone who wishes to work with free energy is obviously venturing into dangerous terrain.

As long as people hold on to power by force, war, crime and so on, it will be impossible to make use of free energy.

Free energy is all about releasing people from their dependence upon their rulers, both seen and unseen. Free energy liberates people by helping them to become independent so that they are no longer forced to bow down to the will and the manipulation of these rulers. Every human being has an absolute right to free energy. It is the substance from which everything is made.

In the three-dimensional world, in which polarity – either/or, struggle and strife – is the norm, the liberating power of this energy has no chance. The use of free energy in the third dimension would lead immediately to power struggles, involving murder and slaughter. Freedom for humanity cannot be achieved on this level. Thus free energy is not actually concerned with the third dimension. It is not a question of using this energy in order to save our environment, although this may be a goal of many of the supporters of free energy.

Free energy is the energy of the future. And it can only be used by developing the human consciousness to a level at which human endeavour is centred upon love and wellbeing of all and for all.

As many readers of this report are already aware, we here on Earth are in a process of advancement, and this can be demonstrated scientifically. Thus, for example, the Schumann resonance (that is, the Earth's own internal vibration) has increased significantly since 1987, and is on the point of ascending to a higher dimension. Earth's advance from the third to the fifth dimension is well under way and is expected to be complete by the end of December 2012.

The energy of the third dimension has already been briefly described above: polarity, fighting, egoism, and so on. The fourth dimension is the abode of earthbound souls, of demons (created by mankind), of negative emotional and mental energies. The fourth dimension is therefore, likewise, very much shaped and influenced by humanity; it is merely the blueprint (the reflection) of the non-material level of human functionality.

Since Mother Earth is developing irreversibly, driven by evolution, into the fifth dimension, it only remains for us human beings to recognise this development and make the decision to allow ourselves to be carried along in this advance into the dimension of love. There are already signs of a cleansing process on Earth in the wake of the floods, conflagrations, earthquakes etc. that are happening everywhere. Countless souls have departed the Earth through such events. Flood and fire catastrophes, earthquakes and so on, are the effects of the Earth changes. Mother Earth is shaking herself, in order to realign her energies and prepare for a higher form of existence.

But what has all this to do with the FOSTAC MAXIMUS® ? A great deal – for the FOSTAC MAXIMUS® is the expression of a thorough understanding of the processes of creation and thus for the holistic use of free energy.

It is not the first time that free energy has been used both technically and spiritually upon Earth. In Atlantis, a continent that vanished beneath the waves roughly 11,000 years ago, there was a unique Golden Age that lasted for about 1,500 years, in which the community had discovered a way of living together centred upon love and well-being. During this period the doors of heaven all stood open and mankind was able to use free energy to realise all its visions (technology, wish fulfilment etc.). Sadly, even there the forces of imbalance regained the upper hand, so that the culture of Atlantis was destroyed and its technologies were lost.

As already mentioned, free energy can only be used in harmony with the laws of creation. It calls for egoism to be suppressed (e.g. no patenting of systems); it only works in the vibration of love and with the intent of serving the general good.

If we now wish to develop technical systems, we must recognise that the use of free energy cannot be achieved solely by technical means.

Free energy is energy from the divine consciousness. If we learn to concentrate this energy so as to put it to practical use, it is inevitable that this will also have an effect upon our psyche and also upon our attitude in our everyday lives. One cannot live in a highly concentrated energy field consisting of love and light (which is the basis of everything that is material) without being affected by it. Every FOSTAC MAXIMUS® owner must understand clearly that the FOSTAC MAXIMUS®, as a «free energy device», has scarcely anything to do with our three-dimensional world, but that it helps us and our environment to make our way into the fifth dimension.

Those to whom this concept appeals are ideally qualified to embark on a totally new type of experience with the FOSTAC MAXIMUS®.

What can the FOSTAC MAXIMUS® really do?

When the first prototypes of the FOSTAC MAXIMUS® were built early in 2007, we had no idea of the wide-ranging significance of this invention. Just like many other idealists, we thought that we now had the means of solving the energy problem, together with all its consequences. We were delighted with this «gift from heaven». The initial results spoke for themselves: Apart from the unit that we set up in our own company, all six of the prototypes were installed in private family homes, where they achieved significant reductions in energy consumption, both of electricity and gas. This was so exciting that we assumed this to be their only effect. We were thrilled at being able to make an immeasurable contribution to improving the energy and environmental situation. At that time we had still not recognised the more subtle effects of the device.

Moreover, the first prototypes were all installed by users who were absolutely convinced of their effectiveness. This caused us to overlook the fact that the FOSTAC MAXIMUS® – like all tachyon products – is a perfect expression of the laws of creation. And the main principle of these laws is to allow every human being free will. If this were not so, then a FOSTAC MAXIMUS® could be used to abuse power and influence people – and this would certainly not be for the good of human evolution.

However, if a person is allowed to have free will, this means that the person is able to influence his/her environment and also to influence the FOSTAC MAXIMUS® – and the latest scientific discoveries confirm this. It has been clearly shown that this is possible with all materials. Just recently computer programmes have even been created with which one can easily demonstrate the extent of this influence. Physics is now reaching at stage at which it recognises that «the spirit controls the material»!

But what is the true effect of the FOSTAC MAXIMUS®? The following explanations are not based on traditional physics, since all the things that we can measure and experience with our five senses in the third dimension account for less than 2% of reality. That would be like half-blind hens that scratch around in their pen and form a picture of the world based only on this experience; they can never realise that there is an immeasurably wide, beautiful and shining world around the pen – the true reality.

Therefore we will not explain the FOSTAC MAXIMUS® from the «hens' viewpoint».

The purpose of the FOSTAC MAXIMUS® is to build a high-density energy field. The careful choice of the materials in the accumulators of the FOSTAC MAXIMUS® and its programming, which is imparted to all the materials, creates an antenna effect that extends beyond the bounds of the fourth dimension. The FOSTAC MAXIMUS® is able to draw free energy from a higher dimension into the current existing dimensional level of Mother Earth. There is nothing remotely crazy about this idea, for we all draw free energy from higher levels into the here and now, with every thought that comes into our minds.

Let's just imagine that we knew exactly what we wanted, and that we were able to remember all of our thoughts, seven days a week, 24 hours a day, every hour, every minute and every second. We would be unable to do anything else, and would be totally occupied with this «programme». Our thoughts would then mostly focus on the here and now, but then there would be no place in our lives for everything else.

However, by careful programming of the FOSTAC MAXIMUS® accumulators we achieve precisely what is described above. Seven days a week, 24 hours a day, every hour, every minute and every second of the day, the FOSTAC MAXIMUS® is transmitting hundreds of information patterns.

This creates resonances, exactly in accordance with the programmed information, based on the law that «like attracts like». The intentions expressed are enriched with ever more energy by drawing it from the creation energy at higher levels, and hence they become manifest.

If we wish to enjoy free energy, this means that the FOSTAC MAXIMUS® must lead its owner into a higher level of vibration (i.e. into a higher dimension), where the free will is able to function once more without restriction. This is the fifth dimension, the dimension of love, where the good of «all» once again overcomes individual egoistic self-interests.

However, we are still living in the third and fourth dimensions, in which the above-mentioned pattern of behaviour is still present to a significant degree. Therefore an initial process takes place in which the vibrational frequency in the energy field of the FOSTAC MAXIMUS® is raised. After being installed, a FOSTAC MAXIMUS® usually starts to work at the level of red light (colours are vibration frequencies). On this level the energy field is freed from aggression energies, existential fears, shock energies and so on. When this cleansing is completed, the vibration rises to the orange level. In this part of the process, depression energies, resignation, loss of self-control, etc. are all cleansed away. The frequency now rises into the yellow region, where the individual who is living in the energy field is led into a process of «letting go». He or she is now able to take a better hold upon life, and progress from a state of being controlled by others into being in charge of his or her own destiny. This process allows the energy to rise into the green region – and now the powers of creation are awakened, regeneration is activated and both the individual person and the interaction between people in the vicinity become more harmonic. The first level of freedom from behavioural patterns is reached.

This in turn raises the vibration into the blue range. This releases the ability for self-realisation by freeing us from constraints of our upbringing and our past experiences. At last we feel ourselves free to stand on our own, to do and to have what suits us best. We are no longer trying to please others, but know instead that it is all about being true to ourselves.

By this means, the vibration of the FOSTAC MAXIMUS® rises into the violet region, and everything in its field that still remains untransformed, such as local historical events (for everything that has ever happened is recorded in the Earth's magnetic field), is now released. Only when this process is complete does the vibration rise into the level of white light (the vibration of crystal) and thus into the vibration of the fifth dimension.

Now all the conditions are fulfilled to enable this energy field, in combination with the programming of the accumulators, to support the realisation of all that the user feels to be important – such as increased efficiency of current consumption, increased business turnover, living together in harmony and so on.

The high-density FOSTAC MAXIMUS® field can be considered as a concentrator of one's own thoughts, supporting the manifestation without distorting it in any way. We become exactly that which we feel, think and say.

The FOSTAC MAXIMUS® challenges us to live trustingly, to feel and think correctly, and so to act in the right way.

When we are able to trust fully in ourselves, when we know that we have something that will quickly and efficiently assist us in our goals, and we rejoice in this and are glad, then we will also realise these goals and make them manifest.

But if our actions follow negative patterns of thought, then it may happen that the manifestation field of the FOSTAC MAXIMUS® will mirror precisely this situation. The deficiency will be enhanced (for instance, by increasing the power consumption) in order to show us that we have not understood the laws of creation and have directed the energies into negative scenarios instead of focusing them upon our true goals.

For some time we ourselves have focused our arguments upon such things as reducing the cost of power consumption and increasing efficiency. This was a mistake, because this effect only occurs after the cleansing of the energy fields, and it is also often linked to a learning process on the part of the people who are involved. And in addition, the FOSTAC MAXIMUS® helps people to rise up into the fifth dimension, where there is no more want and where we will soon be laughing about our former human cares and worries. The urge to save is a relic of third-dimension behaviour, and we should try to overcome it. Going with the flow, accepting the gifts of heaven, and giving thanks, that is the way to find happiness.

But if anyone has doubts about the method of operation of the FOSTAC MAXIMUS®, we recommend that they do not buy a unit yet – there is too great a risk that the operation of the device will merely intensify their doubt.

If, however, we open ourselves to the manifold possibilities of this device and are willing to let ourselves be pleasantly surprised, then we may have every expectation of positive results.

As a company, we too have abandoned our old way of thinking in the light of this new knowledge. We are coming to recognise, more and more, that the real purpose of the FOSTAC MAXIMUS® is to promote mankind's evolutionary upward progress. The increase in energy efficiency is merely a side effect. The FOSTAC MAXIMUS® helps mankind to recreate the Garden of Eden here on Earth out of their own hearts, by letting go of polarised ego-oriented patterns of behaviour and building an existence dominated by love. Those who love themselves unconditionally radiate this out and become capable of compassion and goodness. To one who lives from the heart, the wellbeing of the whole of creation is a central objective.

Become someone who lives from the heart. Grow up into a five-dimensional being. Lead your company into a new sphere, by letting go. Give yourself or your company a target that serves the general good. You must do it for yourself – but we can provide you with a marvellous aid in the FOSTAC MAXIMUS®.
